

Date _____

Department: cyberSecurityA2 Rollno: 25F-CV-090

Question NO: 2

Subject: Communication Skills Date: 11/3/2026

contact NO: 03347087485

A memo is used outside an organization to maintain formal written communication with external bodies like government agencies, regulators, or partner firms, serving as legal record of shared decisions and policies. It is clear, concise, and professional alternative to lengthy formal reports, widely adopted as a standard format in inter-agency and public sector communication.

Question NO: 8

Hearing is a passive physiological process where sound waves are received by the ears without conscious effort. Listening is an active, intentional process involving attention, interpretation, and understanding of the message received. Listening requires focus and engagement, while hearing occurs automatically even without concentration.

Question NO: 14

A precis is a formal, condensed version of a text written in one's words, maintaining the original tone and logical order. A summary is a broader, informal retelling of the main points without strictly following the original structure. Precis requires exact proportionality while summaries are more flexible in length and style.

NOBLE

Date _____

Question NO: 10

Public announcements at such places contain critical information like gate changes, delays, or safety instructions that directly affect travel plans. Missing or misunderstanding these announcements can lead to missed flights, wrong platforms, or safety hazards. Attentive listening ensures timely response and prevents costly or dangerous mistakes.

Question NO: 9

Listening ensures accurate understanding of the sender's message, preventing miscommunication in personal and professional settings. It shows respect, building relationships, and encourages open dialogue, making interactions more productive.

Question NO: 4

The principles include clarity, conciseness, completeness, correctness, consideration, courtesy and concreteness (7C's). These principles ensure the message is understood correctly, reducing misunderstandings in personal relationships and professional settings. They improve productivity, build trust, and enhance teamwork in workplaces and daily life.

NOBLE

Date _____

Question NO: 3

verbal communication is the use of spoken or written words to convey a message between sender and receiver. Techniques include storytelling, visual aids, Question and answer sessions, and structured speeches to engage audiences effectively. Benefits include clarity, immediate feedback, personal connection, and persuasion, e.g., a sales pitch using slides.

Question NO: 15

Note-making helps students actively engage with content and retention of key ideas. It creates a personalized reference for future revision, capturing important points in a concise, organized format.

Question NO: 17

Process diagram of communication

NOBLE

Date _____

Question NO: 5

1. Keep eye contact but don't stare, look naturally and blink normally.
2. Use 3 to 5 second rule, then glance away briefly before returning.
3. Practice during everyday conversations to gradually build comfort and confidence with eye contact.

NOBLE