

DAWOOD UNIVERSITY OF ENGINEERING & TECHNOLOGY

SUBJECT : PST

DEPARTMENT : AI

SECTION : B

PRESENTED BY : S.M ROHAN ALI (089)

BURHAN ANSARI (091)

AZKHAR ALI (062)

LECTURER : SIR FAISAL

IS PAKISTAN RESPONSIBLE FOR ITS OWN INSTABILITY?

A Critical Analysis of Internal vs. External Drivers

PRESENTED BY

Syed Muhammed Rohan Ali (089)

Muhammed Burhan Ansari (091)

Azkhar Ali (062)

CONTENT LIST

1. Weak Democratic Foundations
2. Crisis of Leadership & Continuity
3. The Civil-Military Imbalance
4. Economic Mismanagement & Debt
5. Inflation, Debt, and Social Frustration
6. Institutional Weakness & Erosion of Trust
7. Security Gaps & the Cost of Extremism
8. The Education Crisis & Human Capital
9. Youth Frustration & "Brain Drain"
10. Conclusion: The Path Forward

WEAK DEMOCRATIC FOUNDATIONS

INSTITUTIONAL FRAGILITY & EARLY POWER STRUGGLES

DELAYED CONSTITUTION

The first constitution was delayed for 9 years until 1956, creating a power vacuum that allowed non-democratic forces to gain influence early on.

IMMATURE INSTITUTIONS

Democratic institutions were never allowed to mature naturally. Instead of evolving through practice, they were repeatedly bypassed.

LEGACY OF DISRUPTION

Early power struggles between political factions weakened civilian authority at its birth, making the system vulnerable to external and internal pressures.

SYSTEMIC WEAKNESS

When the rules of the game are unclear or constantly changing, governance becomes inconsistent, and long-term planning becomes an impossibility.

CRISIS OF LEADERSHIP & CONTINUITY

THE GOVERNANCE CHALLENGE OF FREQUENT TRANSITIONS

01

THE TERM COMPLETION GAP

No Pakistani Prime Minister has ever completed a full 5-year constitutional term, leading to chronic policy reversals and systemic instability.

02

ECONOMIC STAGNATION

Frequent leadership changes disrupt long-term economic planning and delay critical infrastructure projects essential for national growth.

03

EROSION OF GLOBAL CONFIDENCE

Political volatility discourages foreign direct investment and weakens Pakistan's negotiating position in the international arena.

"National growth is fundamentally impossible without political continuity and stable, predictable leadership."

THE CIVIL-MILITARY IMBALANCE

STRUCTURAL FRAGILITY & INSTITUTIONAL OVERLAP

STRUCTURAL IMBALANCE

Pakistan has experienced cycles of direct military rule and indirect political influence, which has hindered the natural development of democratic governance.

INSTITUTIONAL OVERLAP

Responsibilities often overlap between civilian and military institutions, leading to governance inconsistencies and a lack of clear accountability.

CONSTITUTIONAL BOUNDARIES

In stable systems, institutions operate within strict constitutional limits. In Pakistan, these boundaries are frequently blurred, increasing systemic uncertainty.

LONG-TERM FRAGILITY

This imbalance prevents the maturation of robust, independent civilian institutions, making the state more vulnerable to internal and external shocks.

POLITICAL POLARIZATION & GOVERNANCE VACUUM

PARTISANSHIP OVER NATIONAL PROGRESS

PARTISANSHIP OVER POLICY

Political parties often prioritize weakening their opponents rather than strengthening governance, leading to a stalemate in national progress.

NEGLECTED REFORMS

Intense rivalry shifts focus away from critical areas like education reform, industrial growth, and structural economic restructuring.

PUBLIC DISCOURSE

Politics becomes centered around protest movements and media battles rather than constructive policy debate, alienating the citizenry.

THE RESULT

A governance vacuum where national issues remain unresolved while political rivalry dominates public discourse.

ECONOMIC MISMANAGEMENT

STRUCTURAL WEAKNESSES & POLICY FAILURES

THE IMF CYCLE

Repeated reliance on IMF programs (23+ times) indicates deep-seated structural flaws rather than temporary liquidity crises. This cycle stems from a persistent inability to generate internal revenue.

NARROW TAX BASE

A significant portion of the economy remains undocumented or untaxed, placing an unfair burden on the formal sector and limiting the state's capacity for public investment.

TRADE IMBALANCE

Low export diversification combined with high dependency on imported fuel and luxury goods creates a chronic current account deficit, draining foreign exchange reserves.

RESOURCE DRAIN

Persistent inability to generate internal revenue limits the state's capacity for public investment, trapping the nation in a cycle of debt and low growth.

INFLATION, DEBT, AND SOCIAL FRUSTRATION

ECONOMIC HARDSHIP AS A CATALYST FOR UNREST

ECONOMIC HARDSHIP

High public debt leads to currency depreciation and skyrocketing costs of living, disproportionately affecting middle and lower-income groups.

PURCHASING POWER

The rapid erosion of purchasing power fuels widespread public anger and a sense of systemic injustice across the nation.

Economic misery triggers protests and strikes, which further destabilize governance and discourage investment.

INSTITUTIONAL WEAKNESS & EROSION OF TRUST

THE BACKBONE OF STABILITY UNDER STRAIN

SLOW JUDICIAL PROCESSES

Legal bottlenecks and a massive backlog of cases lead to delayed justice. When legal resolution takes years, citizens lose faith in the rule of law as a mechanism for conflict resolution.

BUREAUCRATIC INEFFICIENCY

Outdated administrative structures and a lack of merit-based accountability hinder effective service delivery and policy implementation at the grassroots level.

SELECTIVE ACCOUNTABILITY

Perceptions of politically motivated accountability mechanisms further damage the credibility of state institutions, creating a cycle of cynicism.

THE FEEDBACK LOOP

Without trust in institutions, citizens bypass formal systems, leading to further lawlessness and systemic instability that feeds back into institutional decay.

Strong institutions are the backbone of stable nations; their erosion directly breaks the social contract.

SECURITY GAPS & THE COST OF EXTREMISM

INTERNAL GOVERNANCE FAILURES AS A SECURITY RISK

INTERNAL VULNERABILITIES

Governance gaps allow extremist groups to exploit social and economic grievances, turning internal weaknesses into national security threats.

THE ECONOMIC TOLL

Security instability discourages foreign direct investment and forces disproportionately high defense spending, further straining the national budget.

GOVERNANCE GAPS

The failure to provide basic services and justice creates a vacuum that non-state actors often fill, undermining the state's authority and legitimacy.

GLOBAL IMAGE DAMAGE

Chronic security challenges have damaged Pakistan's global standing, complicating international trade, diplomacy, and economic partnerships.

Extremism thrives where governance is weak, education is low, and economic opportunities are limited.

THE EDUCATION CRISIS & HUMAN CAPITAL

THE LONG-TERM FOUNDATION OF NATIONAL STABILITY

THE LITERACY GAP

Millions of children remain out of school, creating a massive skill mismatch that hinders Pakistan's ability to compete in a globalized economy.

"Long-term national stability is inextricably linked to the quality and accessibility of a nation's education system."

SOCIETAL VULNERABILITY

A lack of critical thinking skills makes the population more susceptible to misinformation, political manipulation, and extremist narratives.

PRODUCTIVITY LOSS

Underdeveloped human capital limits innovation and economic productivity, trapping the nation in a cycle of low-growth and high-dependency.

YOUTH FRUSTRATION & "BRAIN DRAIN"

THE DEMOGRAPHIC CHALLENGE OF LIMITED OPPORTUNITY

DEMOGRAPHIC DIVIDEND OR DISASTER?

Pakistan has one of the largest youth populations in the region. This demographic is a strength only if properly managed through job creation and skill development.

THE EXODUS OF TALENT

Skilled professionals and the educated youth are migrating abroad in record numbers, depriving Pakistan of the human capital essential for domestic growth.

LOST POTENTIAL

Instead of building Pakistan's future, its best talent is contributing to other economies, further weakening the nation's long-term development capacity.

SOCIAL UNREST

When youth face unemployment and limited prospects, frustration increases, leading to social unrest and a permanent loss of national talent.

CONCLUSION: THE PATH FORWARD

STRENGTHENING INTERNAL SYSTEMS FOR SUSTAINABLE STABILITY

POLITICAL INCONSISTENCY

Frequent leadership changes and lack of continuity have historically undermined national progress.

STRATEGIC SHIFT

Strengthen democratic institutions and respect constitutional boundaries to ensure predictable governance.

ECONOMIC MISMANAGEMENT

Structural flaws and chronic debt cycles have trapped the nation in a state of perpetual dependency.

STRATEGIC SHIFT

Implement bold, long-term structural economic reforms to generate internal revenue and reduce debt.

INSTITUTIONAL FRAGILITY

Weak rule of law and bureaucratic inefficiency have eroded the social contract and public trust.

STRATEGIC SHIFT

Prioritize education, human capital development, and merit-based accountability across all state organs.

"True stability will emerge not from blaming external actors, but from fixing the system from within."